

8:15 am

Grabbing a cup of joe and settling into my desk. I touch base with the sales team to review what's on today's agenda. We've got a lot of job openings coming in today! Time to get started...

9:00 am

One of our clients is looking for a skilled machinist for their first shift. Last week I interviewed the perfect candidate for the job. I'll get him set up with a final interview for Thursday. I have a feeling he will be just the man for the job!

10:15 am

Off to a recruiter tour with a new GTR client. I really enjoy getting face to face with hiring managers to better understand the company and job requirements. The more I know, the better I can get their positions filled!

11:10 am

Heading back to the office to make a few job offers before lunch. We go over all the details of their new position and they are set to start on Monday. This is the best part of being a recruiter - Helping someone land their next job!

12:05 pm

Lunch with the usual crowd at West Park Station. It's so convenient to have great lunch spots right across the street. Having someone to grab lunch with (being my co-workers) is key too.

PICTURE THIS:

Day in the Life of a
GTR Recruiter

1:15 pm

Talking with some potential candidates to learn more about their background. We have an open position this candidate would be perfect for. GREAT! Let's get the interview scheduled right away!

2:25 pm

Alright, Alright! I just heard that one of my candidates got the job. Another successful recruiting effort. Not only was I able to line someone up with a new job, but I helped a GTR client find a qualified employee!

3:15 pm

On the phone with a candidate who is hesitant towards working with a staffing service. I talk with them and explain why GTR is different and how it's to their advantage to use us as a job search resource. Sealed the deal: They are coming in tomorrow for an interview!

4:30 pm

Working on an opening with one of our clients. They need someone to start tomorrow morning. The crunch is on! I've prepared for situations like this so I am ready to go and already know which job seeker will be the right person to contact.

5:45 pm

Great day - Achieved my goals by filling several open positions and set up new candidates to come in to interview. I'm ready to head out and play some ball with the guys. See you tomorrow!